

Marie Lalande-Dauger appointed as Executive Director Engineering and CSR

Gecina is announcing Marie Lalande-Dauger's arrival as Executive Director Engineering and CSR from September 11, 2023. Reporting to Beñat Ortega, Chief Executive Officer, she will be a member of the Executive Committee.

Marie Lalande-Dauger will head up the Engineering and CSR Department, which groups together the Technical Department and the CSR and Innovation Department. The creation of this new hub will further strengthen synergies between the ambitions from the Group's energy efficiency plan and its ambitions focused on continuously improving the sustainable performance of its buildings.

This new department will play a major role in terms of supervision, expertise and advice for the two office and residential "Operational Engineering" Departments, supported by the Compliance Department, which were also created recently.

An Ecole Polytechnique and Ecole des Mines engineer, Marie Lalande-Dauger, 43, brings nearly 20 years' experience in energy services, distribution and production activities. Her track record includes time with Dalkia as Operational Center Director, overseeing the management of service contracts in commercial buildings. From 2019, she was Operations, Maintenance and Asset Management Director for EDF Renouvelables' onshore wind and solar farms in France.

"I am particularly honored to be heading up this department, which sets out Gecina's strong ambition concerning environmental and energy aspects. I will be committed to contributing, along with all of the teams, to the achievement of the Group's ambitious carbon and energy efficiency objectives", confirms Marie Lalande-Dauger.
